A CALL TO ACTION Addressing the Meth Crisis in Arizona

February 13-14, 2006 • Wyndham Downtown Phoenix

Featuring

Governor
Janet Napolitano

Attorney General
Terry Goddard

Arizona's statewide interdisciplinary conference on methamphetamine with a focus on public policy & community action.

February 13, 2006

Welcome to the Arizona Methamphetamine Conference. We are encouraged by the large attendance for this important meeting and appreciate your participation.

It is hard to overstate the damage being done to citizens and communities across Arizona by this deeply rooted drug problem. In addition to the lives it destroys, meth use and production are closely connected with a long list of property and violent crimes.

This multi-disciplinary program brings together experts in many fields vital to breaking the drug's hold on our state. It is our hope that these presentations and discussions will generate renewed energy and ideas for more effective prevention, prosecution and treatment efforts. Working together, we can and will bring Arizona's meth crisis under control.

Janet Napolitano
Governor

Terry Goddard
Attorney General

FEATURED SPEAKERS

Janet Napolitano —Arizona's 21st Governor

Janet Napolitano's story is symbolic of the success that so many Arizonans have found in this state. Like millions of fellow Arizonans, Governor Napolitano is a transplant, having been born in New York City and raised in Albuquerque, New Mexico. She is a distinguished alumna of Santa Clara University and the University of Virginia Law School and has lived in Arizona since 1983, when she moved to Phoenix to practice law.

Governor Napolitano has worked on resolving Arizona's problems with methamphetamine since she was Attorney General, and this last July, she began work in partnership with Attorney General Goddard to create a statewide and community based anti-meth initiative. Today, we are officially kicking off that initiative.

Terry Goddard —Arizona's 24th Attorney General

Attorney General Goddard has fought to improve the lives of Arizonans throughout his public service career – a commitment he continues as our Attorney General. Since taking the oath as Attorney General in 2003, Terry has focused on consumer justice, including fighting cyber crime, especially identity theft and internet crimes against children; tackling the evils of predatory lending by taking action against companies that mislead and financially harm homeowners; suing drug manufacturers and payday loan providers for abusing consumers and taking on car dealers that use deceptive advertising. These suits have returned millions of dollars to consumers and the State and have forced significant changes in business practices.

Terry has a long history of serving the public, including four terms as Mayor of Phoenix and seven years as the Arizona State Director for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Terry is an Arizona native, born and raised in Tucson. He received his undergraduate degree in American history from Harvard University and his law degree from Arizona State University.

H. Westley Clark, MD, JD, MPH, CAS, FASAM is the Director of the U.S. Health and Human Services, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, Center for Substance Abuse Treatment. As director of the Center, he leads the agency's efforts to provide effective and accessible treatment to all Americans with addictive disorders. Dr. Clark is a noted practitioner, author, and educator in substance abuse treatment; anger and pain management; psychopharmacology; and medical and legal issues. He has received numerous awards for his contribution to the field of substance abuse treatment, including the U.S. President's rank of Meritorious Executive in the Senior Executive Service for his sustained superior accomplishments in management of programs of the United States Government and for noteworthy achievement of quality and efficiency in the public service, 2003 and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Secretary's Award for Distinguished Service for his leadership in spearheading a new anti-addiction treatment enabling thousands of Americans to recover from heroin addiction. Dr. Clark received his board certification from the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology in Psychiatry and sub-specialty certifications in both Addiction and Forensic Psychiatry. Dr. Clark is licensed to practice medicine in California, Maryland, Massachusetts and Michigan. He is also a member of the Washington, D.C., Bar Association.

W. A. Drew Edmondson was District Attorney in Muskogee for ten years before being elected Oklahoma's Attorney General in 1994. In 1998, he was re-elected without opposition, only the second Attorney General in Oklahoma's history so honored. He was re-elected in 2002 to a third term. Mr. Edmondson's term in office has been marked by high activity on many fronts, from environmental protection to death penalty appeals. He has taken strong action in a number of public corruption cases. His Public Utility Section won record refunds and rate reductions for telephone, gas and electric services. In 1996 he filed and then led to successful settlement the case against the tobacco industry, the largest civil settlement in history. Mr. Edmondson was one of eight state attorneys general who negotiated the end result that will bring Oklahoma $2.3 billion over the next 25 years.

Tony Heredia, MPA is the Director of Investigations for Target Corporation. His areas of responsibility include corporate investigations, forensic services, international supply chain security, corporate security, financial investigations, employee and guest safeness, and law enforcement partnerships. Prior to Target, Mr. Heredia spent 13 years in California Law Enforcement as an officer, sergeant, and lieutenant, and 5 years as a management consultant with Booz Allen Hamilton in McLean, Virginia. Mr. Heredia has a Bachelor's Degree in Management from Saint Mary's College of California and a Master's Degree in Public Administration from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

C. West Huddleston, III is the Director of the National Drug Court Institute (NDCI). Based in the Nation's Capital, NDCI is the educational, research and scholarship arm of the National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP), a non-governmental organization (NGO). Mr. Huddleston oversees over 130 training and technical assistance events and a number of relevant publications each year aimed at improving drug court and other problem-solving court operations. Mr. Huddleston is a graduate of the counseling program at Shelby State College, Tennessee and is a Board Licensed Counselor with 13 years of clinical experience working with misdemeanor and felony offenders on the county, state, and federal levels. Prior to being named Director of NDCI in 1998, Mr. Huddleston worked throughout the Tennessee and Oklahoma correctional systems. During that time, Mr. Huddleston designed and implemented the first prison therapeutic community and work camp within the Oklahoma Department of Corrections (The Bill Johnson Correctional Center). Mr. Huddleston has also served as the Director of two community corrections programs and as the Interim Director of a 125-bed pre-release correctional center. In addition, he co-designed and implemented the first two drug courts in the State of Oklahoma, one of which served as one of the first seven Mentor Courts for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Michael Klitzner has twenty-five years of experience as a researcher, lecturer, and author in the areas of substance abuse prevention and treatment. His primary interest is the application of social policy approaches to reducing health and social problems. Michael has been the recipient of a dozen major research and development grants and contracts from the National Institutes of Health, the United States Department of Transportation, The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, and the Pew Memorial Trusts. He is the author of over two dozen books, book chapters, and peer reviewed articles directed at scientific, professional, and lay audiences.

John Martyny, Ph.D., CIH * National Jewish Medical & Research Center — As the methamphetamine epidemic rapidly escalates in Arizona and around the nation, more police and other first responders are being exposed to a toxic brew of chemicals found in laboratories where these drugs are manufactured. Among the chemicals found in methamphetamine labs are hydrochloric acid, sulfuric acid, phosphine, acetone, and anhydrous ammonia. Although hazards posed by these individual chemicals are generally understood, no one knows what happens when these chemicals combine in the meth labs and what exactly is in the air, carpets and walls of the labs. Researchers led by John Martyny, Ph.D., CIH industrial hygienist and Associate Professor of Medicine at National Jewish Medical & Research Center are accompanying law enforcement and health officers on seizures of clandestine methamphetamine laboratories to better understand the hazards posed by toxic chemicals in these illegal labs with a goal of better protecting first responders who enter the drug labs, innocent bystanders and children found living in more than a third of them. National Jewish is the first in the nation to develop such a comprehensive research protocol. (See: Chemical Exposures Associated with Clandestine Methamphetamine Laboratories Using the Hypophosphorous and Phosphorous Flake Method of Production, September 2005, <http://www.nationaljewish.org>)

Mike McGrath was elected Montana's 19th attorney general in November 2000 and was unopposed for his second term in 2004. In his dual role as the state's chief law enforcement officer and legal official, McGrath oversees a staff of more than 700, including attorneys, forensic scientists, investigators, Montana Highway Patrol officers, motor vehicle professionals, gambling control specialists, information technology professionals and support staff members. Prior to his election, McGrath served five terms as Lewis and Clark County Attorney. In his 18 years as a prosecutor, McGrath focused on family violence issues, including domestic abuse and sexual assault of children. A Butte native, McGrath earned a degree in business administration from the University of Montana in 1970 and graduated from Gonzaga University Law School in 1975. He was a Reginald Heber Smith Community Lawyer fellow in Reno, Nevada, providing legal services to low-income clients. McGrath is a veteran of the United States Air Force. He is a former chair of the Conference of Western Attorneys General (CWAG) and served as president of the Montana County Attorneys' Association.

Jerry Moe, MA, MAC, CET II is the National Director of Children's Programs at the Betty Ford Center in Rancho Mirage, California, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Texas, and Denver, Colorado. An Advisory Board Member of the National Association for Children of Alcoholics (NACoA), he is internationally known as an author, lecturer, and trainer on issues for young children from addicted families. Jerry received the 2005 America Honors Recovery Award from the Johnson Institute, the 2000 Ackerman/Black Award from NACoA for "significantly improving the lives of children of alcoholics in the United States and around the world." Jerry's books include: Kids' Power: Healing Games for Children of Alcoholics; Conducting Support Groups for Elementary Children; Discovery . . . Finding the Buried Treasure; Kids' Power Too: Words to Grow By; The Children's Place . . . At the Heart of Recovery; and the Beamer Series for Kids.

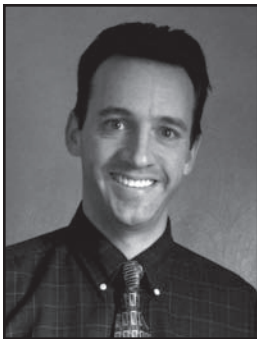

Jerry's work has been featured on the Today Show, People Are Talking, NBC's Newsmagazine Cover to Cover, Good Morning, Texas, and Nickelodeon News, Time, Parents, McCall's, YM, Parenting, Seventeen, and U.S. News and World Report magazines, as well as the Chicago Tribune, Boston Globe, San Francisco Chronicle, Los Angeles Times, and USA Today. He is currently featured on the PBS documentary Lost Childhood: Growing Up in an Alcoholic Family. Jerry has been developing programs and facilitating groups for children from addicted families since 1978.

McGregor W. Scott, a graduate of Santa Clara University (1985) and Hastings College of Law (1989), was nominated by President George W. Bush and confirmed by the United States Senate to be the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of California in 2003. He currently serves as a member of the United States Attorney General's Advisory Committee, and as a member of subcommittees on Native American Issues, Civil Rights, Environmental Issues, and Controlled Substances. He also chairs the United States Attorneys' Methamphetamine Working Group. He is married to fellow attorney Jennifer Urbanski Scott and is the proud father of three young boys.

Wayne Stenehjem was sworn in as North Dakota's Attorney General in 2001 after 24 years as a state legislator in both the House and Senate and 23 years in the private practice of law. As a legislator and Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Wayne was actively involved in crafting many of the state's drug enforcement laws in effect today. Since taking office he has made drug enforcement a priority, developing a drug enforcement initiative that combines enforcement, prevention, education, and treatment. His proactive and hard-hitting legislative proposals have placed North Dakota at the forefront of the fight against meth.

Nicholas Taylor, PhD is consistently rated as one of the top instructors and large group trainers in the state of Colorado on the topic of substance abuse. Dr. Taylor has provided informative and engaging professional development presentations to a wide array of audiences. He is a Licensed Clinical Psychologist and a Level III Certified Addictions Counselor, as well as the director and primary clinician for Taylor Behavioral Health in Montrose. He has lectured and presented extensively throughout the state and surrounding areas on the topics of methamphetamine addiction, designer drugs, psychopharmacology, addictions counseling and treatment. He is also an instructor at Mesa State College, Montrose Campus, teaching courses in Drugs and Human Behavior, Abnormal Psychology, Human Growth and Development and Social Psychology. He completed a clinical internship at Quinco Behavioral Health in Columbus, Indiana in 1997 and earned his doctoral degree in Clinical Psychology from Brigham Young University in 1998.
